

NHS Blood and Transplant – Lay Member – Biography

Melissa D'Mello

Ms D'Mello, a human resources and organisational change management professional, has a MSc. degree from the London School of Economics & Political Science and has studied at Paris-Sorbonne University.

She has extensive experience spanning the private, public and not-for-profit sectors and has worked for a range of blue chip companies both in the UK and overseas and for central Government Ministries.

During February 2017 she took on a new role as a Lay Member, Practice Committees for the Nursing and Midwifery Council.

She believes in improving organisational dynamics through a values-based approach. She maintains an active interest in corporate governance, professional standards, corporate social responsibility and international development and education.